URBAN AGE

Urban Age's principal aim is to shape the thinking and practice of urban leaders and sustainable urban development. Initiated by the Cities Programme at the London School of Economics and Political Science and Deutsche Bank's Alfred Herrhausen Society, Urban Age is structured around international and multidisciplinary events and research supporting the creation of a new urban agenda for global cities. www.urban-age.net

ORGANISED BY

Cities Programme, London School of Economics and Political Science

The Cities Programme at the London School of Economics and Political Science is an international, interdisciplinary centre dedicated to the understanding of contemporary urban society. Its central objective is to relate physical structure to the social structure of cities through teaching, research and public activities. Drawing on the expertise of design professionals, academics, city leaders and policy makers, the Cities programme oversees the Urban Age project at the LSE and the annual European Mayors conferences in addition to providing consultancy services for private and public sector clients.

Alfred Herrhausen Society, the International Forum of Deutsche Bank

The Alfred Herrhausen Society analyses the critical issues, the need for reform and trends in international civil society, and initiates debate on proactive and reactive response options. The immense and complex problems confronting today's society are blind to national borders; solutions can be sought only through cross-border dialogue. The Alfred Herrhausen Society is a centre of independent thinking that seeks to identify traces of the future in the present, and thereby raise public awareness of the directions in which society is moving. As Deutsche Bank's international forum, the Herrhausen Society brings together people who are committed to working for the future of civil society. Founded in 1992, the Society is dedicated to maintaining and building on the legacy of Alfred Herrhausen.
